2. Course contents to be modified in view of the latest development in listening and speaking
3. Incorporate more technology tool for improving listening and speaking

C. Course Description (Note: General description in the form used in Bulletin or handbook)

Course Description:

This course is designed for the undergraduate students who need to develop better listening comprehension and oral skills for academic and practical purposes. Our focus will be on critical listening to make predictions, offer clarification, distinguishing between main ideas and details in a lecture, listening for straw-man arguments, and how to refute them. The course also involves listening activities for recognizing words signaling generalizations, expression signaling analogies, noting analogies in abbreviated form, and completing statements of personal opinion from a study session conversation.

What the learners get from listening comprehension is integrated to speaking activities which focus on advanced speaking skill – sharing personal perspectives and observations at advanced level. The course prepares the students for pragmatics talks driving home the complex concepts with confirmation from the listeners and audiences.
